In an increasingly competitive market it is essential to find the best talent; whether local or national. At NonStop we focus on clearly defined markets in each region of the UK, with teams dedicated to covering a wide selection of specialist disciplines.

At the core of our service is a proactive approach. Through a consistent marketing presence; proactive networking and headhunting; and building on our leading brand name, we are able to source the best talent. Utilising our in-house Market Research team, we have been able to provide our clients with extensive information that helps them drive their hiring decisions, whilst ensuring no stone is left unturned in delivering a successful hire.

Our full UK coverage means our candidates get access to a wide array of opportunities. Subsequently our clients not only benefit from access to local candidates but also those willing to relocate for the right role; a key competitive advantage in an industry where top talent is scarce.

EXPERT INDUSTRY KNOWLEDGE

NonStop's dedicated Market Research team and consistently pro-active consultants maintain a continuously growing up-to-date database, kept to the highest standards through rigorous headhunting, industry networking and strong relationships with clients and candidates.

Through a combination of specific market focused teams and unrivalled client and candidate networks, we provide our clients with a tailored, first class service, whilst our emphasis on proactivity means we can find that rare candidate that might otherwise go undetected.

In addition to receiving award-winning training, all our new consultants have a mandatory 'study week' during which they must research their market and deliver a presentation to the board of directors before we allow them to start recruiting. Furthermore we have consultants with previous teaching experience.

Candidates therefore benefit from speaking to a consultant who truly understands their needs and technically understands their professional discipline, whilst offering the best opportunities combined with local knowledge.

Whether it's an entry level or director level position, our award winning training ensures we understand that a role and its responsibilities extend far beyond a job description. Taking into account organisational culture our consultants supply the most informed and prepared professionals.
